NOURISHING HEALTHY FUTURES
we do more

Feeding America is in more places, rescuing more food and reaching more people every day.

We’re the nation’s largest domestic hunger-relief organization.
WITH YOUR SUPPORT, WE HELPED PROVIDE 4 BILLION MEALS TO 46 MILLION AMERICANS IN NEED DURING FISCAL YEAR 2016.

And we’re committed to doing even more to nourish healthy futures.
Feeding America is fueled by passionate, capable individuals dedicated to ending hunger. Behind every bag of groceries the network provided last year were many extraordinary volunteers and professionals committed to sustaining and enhancing our work.
DEAR FRIENDS,

At Feeding America, our commitment to our mission stems from the belief that food is powerful. It keeps our minds and bodies going and plays an important role in knitting families and communities together. A shared meal can foster meaningful connections. Food helps nourish healthy futures.

Food is critical to well-being, yet tragically, 1 in 8 Americans struggle with hunger. It’s a problem that touches every single county in the United States, and forces families to make tough choices between food and other basic needs, like medicine. Feeding America has a long legacy of fighting hunger across the nation. We do more than any other hunger-relief organization in our country, offering food and hope to over 46 million Americans each year. However, we still have a long road ahead before we can declare victory. The challenge we face is huge, but reflecting on our recent achievements energizes us as we continue to provide more food to more people and develop strategies to end hunger.

In fiscal year 2016, Feeding America surpassed two incredible milestones thanks to the support of many generous individuals, foundations and companies. First, we helped provide more than 4 billion meals for the first time in our history. These meals allowed millions of people to receive much-needed nutrients and hope for the future. Second, Feeding America provided over $50 million in grants to member food banks. This substantial pool of funding enabled food banks to serve even more of their neighbors facing hunger—giving them the nourishment they need to reach for a brighter tomorrow.

These are just two of our many accomplishments from the past year, which are outlined in the following pages. We are grateful to our extraordinary supporters for making this work possible. Your partnership is critical as we work to strengthen our country.

Thank you for helping us nourish healthy futures. Together, we can end hunger.

OUR IMPACT

Feeding America helps improve the well-being of people facing hunger by securing meals, serving food banks, providing services and leading the fight against hunger. We do this to build a society that is better for us all.
NOURISHING HEALTHY FUTURES ACROSS AMERICA

In spite of their hard work and sacrifices, many people in our country do not have enough food for a healthy life. Priscilla, Ortilia, Tyrone, Victoria and many others like them have struggled to feed their families, but they have also received meals—and so much more—from the Feeding America network. Through accessing food and groceries at their local food pantry, served by a Feeding America food bank, the people we serve gain the energy and resolve to build a bright future.

MEET PRISCILLA
Priscilla is a veteran and single mother struggling to earn enough to make ends meet. By visiting her local food pantry, she doesn’t have to skip meals so her children can eat.

MEET ORTILIA & TYRONE
Ortilia and her husband Tyrone began struggling to put food on the table after Tyrone got hurt and lost his job, and shortly thereafter, Ortilia became sick and was unable to work. The food pantry at their church is helping them get back on track.

MEET VICTORIA
Victoria and her family recently moved to a new town to care for Victoria’s aging mother and aunt. It’s been difficult for them to find work, but they have received food and hope from a nearby food pantry.
Feeding America partners with companies across the food industry to rescue good food that might otherwise go to waste, and instead, help get it to the plates of people in need. We’ve secured many meals from longtime, committed partners through our established food donation channels. Additionally, we’ve cultivated new relationships in food streams that were relatively untapped by Feeding America until recently.

MAKING PROGRESS IN PRODUCE

In 2016, we made significant strides in our efforts to source and distribute more fresh produce for the people we serve. We held a Fresh Produce Summit, bringing together produce industry leaders and representatives from 77 food banks to share best practices related to procuring and distributing fruits and vegetables. Conversations from this gathering helped us develop new, innovative strategies for enhancing produce demand and distribution across the network that we will begin implementing in 2017. We also made improvements to Produce Matchmaker, our online produce-ordering tool for food banks. Additionally, we provided $2 million in grants to network food banks to help them develop and implement produce strategies. These efforts and many others equipped us to secure a total of 1.25 billion pounds of produce across all of our food streams in 2016.

SPECIAL THANKS to Cargill, General Mills Foundation, Morgan Stanley, Nationwide Foundation and The Walt Disney Company for supporting our produce initiatives.

PREVENTING FOOD WASTE TO FIGHT HUNGER

For nearly four decades, the Feeding America network has safely redirected wholesome food from being thrown away and instead, provided it to people who struggle with hunger. Last year alone, we rescued 2.8 billion pounds of food. However, food waste is still a pressing problem—42 million Americans face hunger, yet more than 70 billion pounds of food are wasted annually in our country.* In fiscal year 2016, we successfully brought together food rescue thought leaders for our inaugural Food Rescue Summit. We also celebrated the passage of the Protecting Americans from Tax Hikes (PATH) Act in Congress and the establishment of a new directive by USDA Food Safety Inspection Service (FSIS) after years of hard work. The PATH Act authorizes key food donation tax incentives and the USDA-FSIS directive allows for meat donations that were previously inaccessible, opening up many new food-rescue opportunities.

SPECIAL THANKS to our many dedicated partners who prevent food waste and fight hunger by providing generous food donations.

INNOVATING TO GROW FOODSERVICE DONATIONS

Our objective is to source 500 million meals from the foodservice industry by 2025 to significantly reduce food waste and provide more meals. This year, we partnered with Starbucks on FoodShare, a program that will generate 50 million meals by enabling local food banks and food pantries to pick up unsold ready-to-eat meals from local Starbucks stores at the end of each day.

We also invested in the growth and enhancement of MealConnect, formerly known as Online Marketplace, a technology platform developed by Feeding America that now enables independent food donors such as restaurants, convenience stores and produce stands to alert their local food bank when surplus product is ready for pick up—reducing the barriers to donate fresh, nutritious food.

SPECIAL THANKS to Starbucks for their commitment to diverting surplus food from landfills to fight hunger and for their leadership in the growing food-rescue movement. We are also grateful to our friends at Google and the Walmart Foundation for their support for MealConnect.

DEVELOPING NEW METHODS FOR INCREASING RETAIL DONATIONS

Donations from retail stores are Feeding America’s largest food stream, comprising 1.3 billion of the 4 billion meals we helped provide to families in need last year. To ensure that retail donations continue to play a central role in our work, we established relationships with additional retail partners and invested in new approaches for improving donation yields. For example, member food banks received capacity grants to equip the food pantries in their communities to pick up, transport, store and distribute retail donations on their own. Food pantries are sometimes closer to retail stores than food banks, so enabling the food pantries to pick up retail donations helps enhance the network’s efficiency and increase the freshness of the food we distribute. In 2017, we will continue building on this strong foundation for maintaining and growing retail donations.

SPECIAL THANKS to Albertsons Companies, Food Lion, The Kroger Co., Publix, Sam’s Club, Target, Walmart and our other grocery retail partners for their dedication to hunger relief.

WE HELPED PROVIDE

4B MEALS

TO PEOPLE FACING HUNGER LAST YEAR—AN INCREASE OF 8 PERCENT OVER 2015.

Based on U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) guidelines, a meal is equal to 1.2 pounds of food and grocery product.

Serving Food Banks

Feeding America helps member food banks achieve their strategic goals and enhance their work to reach more families in need. From fostering innovation and collaboration to helping food banks grow their capacity to serve, Feeding America helps strengthen the network and bolsters its ability to create broader and lasting community change.

Utilizing New Tools for Data Visualization

Feeding America has set aggressive meal distribution goals in our efforts to meet the needs of more people facing hunger. To reach these goals, we need to develop a deeper understanding of the challenges and opportunities we face. We are proud to partner with Tableau to provide food banks with the resources they need to do just that through data analysis.

In 2016, Tableau generously provided Feeding America with a $1.9 million, in-kind grant to offer Tableau software licenses to our entire food bank network. With the software, Feeding America created visualizations that will help food banks benchmark their performance, improve retail store donation pickups and target areas of highest need. Food banks are using the software to better understand their operations and share data in new and impactful ways.

Special Thanks to Tableau for their partnership in the fight against hunger.

Ensuring Food Safety Across the Network

Feeding America is committed to protecting the health and well-being of the people we serve. Our stringent food-safety standards distinguish us from other hunger-relief organizations and give our partners the confidence to donate significant quantities of perishable food for the people we serve. Member food banks participate in food-safety education and training, receive grants to enhance their food-safety processes, and pass a third-party audit every other year.

This past spring, all available member-operated facilities—a total of 280 facilities—achieved a passing score on their food-safety audits. Our meticulous food-safety standards ensure that the Feeding America network distributes safe and nutritious food to the families who rely on us.

Special Thanks to Cargill for their significant investments in food safety.

100% of all available Feeding America facilities have passed rigorous third-party, food-safety audits.
Providing Grants to Food Banks

Everyone needs nutritious food to thrive—yet with millions of Americans facing hunger, not all of our neighbors may get the chance to reach their full potential. Feeding America helps food banks across the country provide more people with the food they need for a brighter tomorrow. One key way we do this is through providing exclusive access to grants from partner companies, foundations and individuals.

In fiscal year 2016, we distributed a record $50 million in grants to network food banks—a 26 percent increase over last year. These funds are channeled toward everything from helping a food bank reach more children to piloting new strategies for sourcing more fresh produce. This past year, Feeding America was able to provide every single member food bank with grant funding to help them serve their communities.

Providing Services

The Feeding America network goes beyond simply providing food and groceries. We develop and implement innovative programs that improve people's access to nutritious food, leveraging both food banks and federal meal programs. We are also committed to developing research-based strategies for helping people build more food-secure futures for themselves and their families.

Piloting Programs That Improve Household Well-Being

We are developing new initiatives to help enhance the well-being of the people we serve and make meaningful progress toward ending hunger. Collaborating for Clients is one such initiative, and draws on an emerging approach known as collective impact to effect positive changes for families in the areas of food security, health, housing and employment/income.

This year, we successfully concluded the first year of Collaborating for Clients' three-year pilot program, which is designed to support five food banks in creating and implementing a collective impact approach in their communities. Over the past twelve months, participating food banks have partnered with local organizations, developed shared goals and selected key indicators they will use to track progress. As the pilot unfolds, the food banks will continue learning how to effectively partner with their communities to get closer to our vision of a hunger-free America.

Special Thanks to the Laura and John Arnold Foundation for their support for Collaborating for Clients.

Encouraging Healthy Food Choices

Studies demonstrate that diet-related diseases disproportionately affect people who are food insecure. Feeding America is committed to helping make the healthy choice the easy choice for people facing hunger. With this in mind, we recently partnered with Cornell University on the Nutrition Nudge Research study. The project concluded that “nudge” interventions such as signage and product placement encouraged people to make more nutritious choices at food pantries.

“Nudges” increased the number of people who chose healthy foods by 46% and the number of healthy items the average person selected by over 55%.

Special Thanks to the ConAgra Foods Foundation for their contributions to the Nutrition Nudge Research study.

We're using creative approaches to encourage people to eat more nutritious foods.

HELPING MORE PEOPLE ACCESS FOOD ASSISTANCE

Feeding America recognizes that food banks alone cannot provide enough food for everyone struggling with hunger. As a result, we work to accelerate eligible families’ access to federal benefits, including those provided by the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), previously known as food stamps. By connecting the households we serve with SNAP, we can facilitate access to not only more food, but also greater convenience and choice—lessening the stress associated with trying to make ends meet during challenging financial times.

SNAP APPLICATIONS COMPLETED WITH SUPPORT FROM THE FEEDING AMERICA NETWORK

In 2016, the Feeding America network helped people complete nearly 241,000 SNAP applications. We expanded program awareness and targeted new populations through our Online SNAP Referral Pilot, which uses online search ads to connect potential applicants to local outreach staff. The pilot expanded from 27 to 55 food banks and generated 37,000 SNAP program referrals.

SPECIAL THANKS to the Walmart Foundation for investing in our efforts to maximize access to additional meals through SNAP.

HELPING COMMUNITIES REDUCE CHILD HUNGER

Feeding America’s Child Hunger Corps program provides food banks with the talent and resources necessary to develop a better understanding of community food insecurity, and use that information to reach more children and families in need.

Through Child Hunger Corps, we deploy young professionals to food banks for two years to establish or expand local child hunger programs. On average, food banks hosting Corps members were able to distribute three times more meals to children than food banks without members over the same time period. This year, several Corps members completed mapping projects that provided their host food banks with a comprehensive visualization of their program sites and agencies for the first time. Many Corps members have also helped start or expand School Pantry programs to reach a growing number of older children. As of our 2016 fiscal year, 30 Corps members had completed the two-year program at 29 food banks.

SPECIAL THANKS to the ConAgra Foods Foundation for its leadership in alleviating child hunger through the Child Hunger Corps.

FOOD BANKS HAVE BENEFITED FROM THE CHILD HUNGER CORPS PROGRAM

The Child Hunger Corps program helps develop sustainable, community-driven solutions to child hunger.

Watch the video to learn more.
Feeding America is leading the charge to end hunger in America. Through working with many different types of partners and tackling the hunger issue from a variety of angles, we have become a powerful and efficient network that provides more meals in our country than any other hunger-relief organization.

PROMOTING COMMUNITY HEALTH

Diabetes rates have increased dramatically over the past 50 years. Additionally, according to Hunger in America 2014, one-third of the households we serve have a member with diabetes. We recognize that hunger and health are intertwined, and are working to determine how we can support people in need to successfully self-manage diabetes and other health conditions. From 2011-2014, we conducted a pilot study demonstrating that food banks can be effective partners in health promotion. Results from the study were published in Health Affairs, a leading peer-reviewed health policy journal. Building on lessons learned from the diabetes pilot work, we recently began a randomized controlled research trial to rigorously evaluate how food bank-based interventions can support people with diabetes to improve blood sugar control and other health outcomes. These innovative projects are building the evidence on how the Feeding America network can partner with health organizations to successfully promote community health.

EXPANDING OUR UNDERSTANDING OF HUNGER

Feeding America spearheads critical research initiatives to better understand hunger and to continually improve our strategies to end it. In April, we released the sixth consecutive edition of Map the Meal Gap, our signature study on overall and child food insecurity in every county and congressional district in the United States. Not only does this study allow our partners, policy makers, donors and the public to understand the picture of hunger in their communities, it provides our food banks with data that enables them to target their services to people most in need. Additionally, the study generates significant media attention, educating millions about food insecurity in America. In the two months following its release, the study garnered more than 140 million media impressions and over 400 placements in major news outlets.

SPECIAL THANKS to The Howard G. Buffett Foundation, the ConAgra Foods Foundation and Nielsen for generously supporting Map the Meal Gap 2016.

SPECIAL THANKS to the Laura and John Arnold Foundation for their meaningful contributions to our diabetes-related research.
ENGAGING THE NATION IN HUNGER ACTION MONTH

Feeding America works hard to shed light on the problem of hunger in our nation and mobilize the public in our mission to end it. Each September, we take our efforts a step further by launching Hunger Action Month™. The month-long campaign seeks to build greater awareness of domestic hunger and engage new supporters in the movement. Last year, we elevated the spoon as the icon of Hunger Action Month and encouraged the public to share their #Spoontember selfies to show their support. In response, nearly 10,000 spoon selfies were posted online. Additionally, many corporate partners and celebrity activists participated in the campaign. Celebrity supporters included Mario Batali, Savannah Guthrie, Larry King, Tony Hawk and many more. Feeding America also became one of the first nonprofits to partner with Snapchat to develop a Hunger Action Month filter. #Spoontember was featured on a billboard in Times Square, and key landmarks across the country, including Niagara Falls, turned orange—the official color of hunger relief. The campaign earned 5 billion media impressions and elevated the national level of hunger awareness during September and beyond.

SPECIAL THANKS to Cheeky for their creative and generous support for Hunger Action Month.

STRENGTHENING ADVOCACY FOR PEOPLE FACING HUNGER

Feeding America and the Congressional Management Foundation have provided advocacy training to 50 food bank staff to date, equipping them to make a difference in their hometowns and in Washington, D.C.

Surveys indicate that this program, known as the Advocacy Academy, boosted participants’ confidence and enhanced their effectiveness in interacting with policymakers. Prior to the Advocacy Academy training, 28 percent of participants reported feeling comfortable meeting with a member of Congress or their staff, versus 100 percent upon training completion. Additionally, 38 percent of surveyed congressional staff members who met with Advocacy Academy alumni said that they were much more effective than the average advocate for a cause.
GROWING AWARENESS & SUPPORT THROUGH CAUSE MARKETING

Feeding America develops and executes powerful cause marketing campaigns with our corporate supporters. For example, Walmart’s Fight Hunger. Spark Change. campaign raised a record $17.4 million last year by combining donations from customers and suppliers including Campbell Soup Company, General Mills, Kellogg Company, the Kraft Heinz Company and PepsiCo with a donation from Walmart. This campaign and many others engaged the public in the hunger movement in stores, online and through various media.

Linda and Keith Monda's extraordinary financial support has transformed the hunger-relief landscape by advancing child hunger initiatives across the food bank network, expanding fresh produce strategies, sponsoring Feeding America’s Opportunity Accelerator program and increasing the network’s ability to respond in times of disaster. In addition, as a multi-year member of Feeding America’s board of directors and current board chair, Keith’s leadership and vision continue to guide our work and bring us closer to a hunger-free America.
