On a hot summer morning, Elena Martinez, along with her sons—Kevin, 4 and Adonay, 2—arrived at a food pantry that works with Capital Area Food Bank, a member of the Feeding America network.

Before the impact of COVID-19, Elena worked in a restaurant kitchen. Due to the economic fallout from the pandemic, she—like tens of millions of people across the country—lost her job.

As Elena saw the nutritious food available for her to take home to help feed her family of seven, she smiled, excited about the meals she could prepare amid a devastating time of unemployment and uncertainty. Women like Elena are overrepresented in some of the hardest-hit industries for job loss, including leisure and hospitality, healthcare and education, and women—especially Black and Latino women—lost jobs in those sectors at disproportionate rates.

“I’M VERY GRATEFUL TO GOD THAT MY FAMILY IS ABLE TO EAT BECAUSE OF THE FOOD THAT I RECEIVE FROM THE PANTRY.”
Before the pandemic, the Feeding America food bank network relied on the generous time of nearly 2 million volunteers each month. The impact of COVID-19 quickly shattered that. Adhering to shelter-in-place orders, social-distancing protocols and health concerns, food banks saw a 60% decline in this critical volunteer workforce. To adapt and help meet demand, food banks partnered with the National Guard, Team Rubicon and other national volunteer groups. Upon learning about the network’s acute need for volunteers to help feed people during the pandemic, caring and compassionate supporters like you answered the call—neighbors helping neighbors.

When Emily’s school, where she teaches sixth through eighth grades, shut down, she took her three daughters to volunteer at the ST. LOUIS AREA FOODBANK. Volunteering became part of their new daily routine. “Knowing now that there is an even bigger need during the pandemic makes volunteering that much more important,” she said.

Mr. Reeves is the academic dean at Sul Ross Middle School, which worked with the SAN ANTONIO FOOD BANK to host an emergency food distribution for local families. “I get to see my students’ parents, aunties, uncles and grandmothers picking up food, and it’s an absolute pleasure to work and make sure all students are fed during this time of need.”

Mark volunteers at SECOND HARVEST HEARTLAND in St. Paul, Minnesota once a week and has continued signing up for shifts during the COVID-19 crisis. He is thankful his employer allows him to take time off to volunteer during the workday so he can fill shifts that others can’t.
During times of unprecedented crisis and uncertainty, people harness a resilience they never knew they were capable of to unite with others and provide support. Boundaries disappear and communities rise through collective compassion and the belief that, together, we can overcome any challenge.

That spirit of shared empathy and generosity has been evident since the effects of COVID-19 blanketed not just our country, but the world—yielding shifts in daily norms and routines that have shaped our current reality.

Driven by your generosity in fiscal year 2020, the Feeding America food bank network quickly activated and restructured operations to meet the surge in demand due to COVID-19. Your support enabled network members to help provide nearly 5.2 billion meals to people facing hunger—40% of whom, due to the pandemic, were seeking charitable food assistance for the first time in their lives.

The fallout from the pandemic, including record unemployment rates, economic hardship, school closures, physical and social isolation, and downturns in emotional health and well-being, could have frozen us in fear and chaos—and yet, together, we stood in strength and resolve, determined to not let hunger be an additional worry for millions of people.
A MESSAGE FROM OUR CEO AND BOARD CHAIR

As we continue to navigate through a global pandemic, as well as a critical nationwide dialogue on ending systemic racism, we are gratefully aware that any progress we make in our mission to end hunger—now and in the future—will be furthered by dedicated supporters like you. We value your steadfast commitment to ensuring our neighbors facing hunger have equitable access to the food they need, and we remain focused on ensuring the families we serve not only have nourishment, but also stability, as the ripple effects of the pandemic persist.

Thank you for your dedicated partnership in our mission to end hunger. Together, we are emerging stronger and making a meaningful difference for millions of neighbors in communities across the country.

Best regards,

Our vision is an America where no one is hungry.

Our mission is to feed America’s hungry through a nationwide network of member food banks and engage our country in the fight to end hunger.

Our commitment is to keep people at the center of all we do and address racial disparities in all our work.

In every community across the country, the Feeding America network of food banks provides neighbors with the meals they need—advancing our work toward ending hunger in America.
Feeding America has projected that 1 in 6 people (50.4 million) in the U.S. could be food insecure in 2020 in the wake of the pandemic—up from 1 in 9 people (35 million) in 2019.
We are committed to placing the people we serve at the center of our work to end hunger.
TOGETHER WE ARE

To meet the surge in demand due to COVID-19, Feeding America—the nation’s largest food recovery organization—executed innovative solutions to rescue even more food for our neighbors in need.

Through Dairy Nourishes America, a collaborative project with the Innovation Center for U.S. Dairy, MilkPEP and the National Dairy Council, we convened partners throughout the dairy supply chain to build and leverage relationships to provide more than 465 million pounds of fresh milk and dairy products to network members. Due to supply chain disruption, and in response to the pandemic, we collaborated with our dairy community partners to access, process and distribute excess milk supply. This collaboration resulted in the distribution of over 1 million gallons of fresh milk and other dairy products to the network.

Protein is one of the most difficult food items to secure. Thanks to the support of protein industry partners, we secured over 573 million meals of nutritious meat, fish and poultry for people in need. We continue to work with industry partners on our strategic roadmap to enable member food banks to reduce the protein gap.

Families nationwide received more than 1.8 billion pounds of fresh produce distributed by network members. Your support enabled us to move over 42 million pounds of produce between April 20 and June 30. Feeding America strengthened seven, member-led, regional produce cooperatives whose mission is to orchestrate large produce donations and increase food variety for network members and the people they serve. The co-ops increased pounds distributed to the network to over 259 million pounds. The produce program also distributed direct grants to over 25% of the network to support purchases of refrigerated trucks and other capacity-building projects, or offset transportation costs, which enable network members to hold and distribute produce to people facing hunger in rural and isolated communities.

4 BILLION POUNDS of good, safe groceries were rescued and redirected to food banks.
Thanks to you, more than 5 BILLION MEALS reached neighbors in need.

Based on USDA guidelines, a meal is equal to 1.2 pounds of food and grocery product.

*Meals provided by Feeding America outreach, estimated for fiscal year 2020.
Feeding America food banks are trusted institutions embedded in their communities that allow us to immediately respond to disasters—including a global pandemic.

The COVID-19 crisis created a perfect storm for network members that suffered critical gaps in funding, food, volunteers and distribution, just as more neighbors needed help to put food on the table. Powered by your compassion and generosity, the network reinvented operating models and processes to mobilize and execute innovative measures to get food to more people.

Your support helped food banks implement a variety of methods to adapt and remain efficient, including touchless drive-thru food distributions, no- or low-contact operations, pre-packing food boxes and scheduling pick-ups online in advance. Some food banks worked with food delivery companies to deliver meals to homebound seniors, while others offered enrollment assistance for the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) by phone, text and mail.

As food donations from retailers and manufacturers dropped by 40% to 70%, food banks channeled new supply sources. When restaurants, schools and college cafeterias closed, demand for the food normally sold to those entities quickly ceased—so food banks worked with industry suppliers to capture that product.

We are grateful for donors and partners like you who helped network food banks respond with strength and speed to provide nutritious food to neighbors facing hunger when they needed us most.
The Feeding America network has the national footprint and technical expertise to help communities prepare for and endure major catastrophes.

Before the pandemic, 35 Feeding America member food banks committed to intensive disaster preparedness and capacity building efforts focused on making their communities more resilient to future disruptions. These food banks participated in disaster capacity institutes and a disaster capacity advisors program, matching food banks possessing significant disaster experience with food banks looking to improve their disaster relief programs. Thanks to Abbott, ALDI Inc., Allstate Insurance Company, American Airlines and International Paper, among many others, food banks are able to pre-stage and deploy disaster boxes.

More than 14 food banks were affected by non-COVID-19 natural disasters this past year. In partnership with supporters like you, Feeding America helped provide 2.5 million pounds of food, water and supplies as a supplement to relief supplies that were mobilized locally. Disasters cause disruption and distress but member food banks help families regain their strength and rebuild their communities.

IMPACT

With your support, the Feeding America network helped people submit 317,000 SNAP applications—a 10.8% increase over the previous year. SNAP applications submitted through our online paid search program, GSNAP (Google SNAP), saw a 129% increase, and SNAP referrals made from this program saw a 91% increase. These significant spikes reflect a shift to online outreach during the pandemic, as well as the ongoing evolution for how we adapt and execute our work with the network.

Overall, Feeding America’s SNAP Application Assistance Program enabled more than 232 million federally funded meals for people facing hunger. Due to the pandemic, the program—which provides Feeding America resources and capacity building support with food banks so they can help families sign up for SNAP benefits—was adapted to better meet local needs. Food banks quickly developed remote call centers, providing SNAP application assistance by phone or virtually, increasing outreach efforts through digital engagement and social media, and boosting access to and awareness of other benefits like Medicaid, Earned Income Tax Credit and unemployment insurance.

Our SNAP Application Assistance Program, funded by the Walmart Foundation, focused on increasing access to SNAP for senior and rural populations. Grantees embedded human-centered design and rapid testing approaches, concentrating on improving the client experience and scaling effective strategies to reach target demographics, allowing food banks to optimize program effectiveness. Their successful efforts led to more than 32,000 applications submitted for senior and rural populations and learned the key was developing effective partnerships, building trust with the community and adapting their approach to meet local needs.

TOGETHER WE ARE
CONNECTING FAMILIES WITH CRUCIAL BENEFITS

232 MILLION FEDERALLY FUNDED MEALS facilitated by Feeding America’s SNAP Application Assistance Program for people facing hunger.
We worked closely with food banks to modify our services to reach more people disproportionately affected by hunger.

Feeding Children

Over 158 million meals were distributed to children through our child hunger programs, including BackPack, School Pantry and Kids Cafe. There was a 21% increase in the number of School Pantry sites. We provided summer feeding grants to food banks serving households with children in rural areas with child food insecurity rates above the network median. Due to school closures resulting from the pandemic, many food banks distributed family food boxes. Several food banks used USDA waivers to get more meals to kids. Food banks also worked with school bus companies and school districts to get more meals to children.

Serving Seniors

To serve seniors in need, we partnered with network members to evaluate senior hunger-relief programs, research perceptions of senior hunger and invest in new approaches to connect more seniors with SNAP. The network responded with innovative solutions to ensure seniors received the nutritious food they needed during the pandemic. Member food banks created no-contact food box pick-up appointments, and mobilized community partners to increase home deliveries. Pre-pandemic, Feeding America served nearly 166 million meals to over 891,000 seniors through various programs, including the Commodity Supplemental Food Program, mobile pantries and grocery delivery.

Providing Equitable Access

We created an Equitable Access Community of Practice to support network learning and action to increase access to nutritious food by addressing barriers. The community of practice was open to all network food banks and the Innovation Cohort subset—a group of 22 participants selected by application—conducted rapid-cycle testing of solutions to access barriers.

To support rural communities, we distributed $800,000 in member grants. We also convened a Rural Hunger Advisory Committee to develop recommendations for improving food access and food security in rural communities. Key projects are currently being planned or implemented.
Feeding America deepened and escalated our commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion (EDI) throughout our organization as we aim to ensure fair and just treatment, access and opportunity for all people. By focusing on the needs of our neighbors most impacted, we can better ensure the health and safety of all communities. We know the following communities are disproportionately impacted by both COVID-19 and food insecurity: Black Americans, Latino families, Native American households, families with children, seniors, and rural communities.

Critical work emphasizing racial inequality—among many areas of inequity—began, as we understand that all inequitable outcomes must be addressed at the root cause. During fiscal year 2020, Feeding America created and filled our first-ever Equity Director role and the Network EDI Advisory Committee continued its work to help increase the effectiveness in ending food insecurity. We also executed a data-informed equity approach for member food banks by creating a Racial Disparities Dashboard, which launched a cross-departmental discussion around how to measure racial disparities and combine racial disparities alongside our food-insecurity estimates, as well as the importance of providing this data to network members.

We have taken each step with deep intention, demonstrating our action-oriented approach toward our EDI priority—vital to helping us break down data by race and highlight where disparities exist among the neighbors we serve. We will continue to identify and work toward solutions to eliminate social, structural and systemic inequities that contribute to food insecurity for individuals who have been historically disadvantaged and/or adversely impacted by racial inequities.

TO ACHIEVE EQUITY IN FOOD ACCESS

we must address the deep-rooted patterns of racial, ethnic and class inequity that adversely impact food security in America.
We worked closely with food banks, grassroots supporters and policymakers to impact anti-hunger legislation and advocate for people facing hunger. Your partnership helped network food banks engage elected officials and mobilize communities to advance our hunger-relief work. In fiscal year 2020, 476 members of Congress took at least one action on behalf of Feeding America’s policy priorities to strengthen and protect federal nutrition programs.

In addition, the Feeding America Government Relations team and network member food banks urged Congress to pass COVID-19 relief legislation that included additional investments in federal nutrition programs. Together, the Families First Coronavirus Response Act, H.R. 6201 and Coronavirus, Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (CARES Act) H.R. 748 provided a combined total of $850 million in additional funds for The Emergency Food Assistance Program (TEFAP), including $600 million for TEFAP food and $250 million for the cost of storing and distributing the food. Overall, food banks received more than 2 billion pounds of food through TEFAP. These investments help to ensure people facing hunger can put food on the table during this unprecedented time. Additionally, Congress created the Pandemic EBT program to help low-income families cover the cost of meals that children would normally receive at school and increased SNAP benefits for many individuals. The expansion of SNAP online purchasing to 47 states, including Washington, D.C., has made it easier for beneficiaries to purchase food during the pandemic.

Feeding America also successfully advocated for USDA to extend a trio of nationwide program waivers that helped ensure millions of children who depend on school meals would continue to safely receive food when the pandemic forced school closures across the country. The closures led to USDA’s extension of the waivers throughout the 2020-2021 school year, helping to make sure network members can continue to partner with local communities to use flexibilities authorized by Congress and implemented by USDA to offset the loss of school meals.

With your support, we urged Congress to pass COVID-19 relief legislation, which allocated $850 million for U.S.-grown food for people in need.
We create partnerships at the intersection of the charitable food system and the adjacent fields that influence food security, including public benefits, workforce development, financial stability and racial equity. Nearly 100 food banks are engaged in the Ending Hunger Community of Practice (EHCOP), with the goal of working together to identify and replicate solutions that increase the financial well-being of families facing hunger. Among this group, SNAP outreach assistance is the most popular activity outside of food distribution and about half of food bank participants are already implementing additional shorten-the-line activities.

During fiscal year 2020, we assessed nine food bank programs designed to increase financial well-being. Our evaluations showed that, among other things, partnerships and public benefits drive positive outcomes for the people we serve.

In collaboration with EHCOP food banks, we launched the Household Empowerment Pilot, which bundles food, public benefits and financial coaching. While cut short by COVID-19, early indicators were strong, including increased credit scores and debt reduction among participants.

The Job Training Cohort is a forum for 30 food banks with on-site culinary and warehouse training programs. Members graduated over 1,000 students this year and, pre-pandemic, exceeded the industry standard graduation rates, job placement and starting wage. As a result of COVID-19, many food banks have transitioned to virtual training and are working with program alumni who may have lost their jobs due to dramatic shifts in the hospitality industry.

In addition to leveraging the experience of the food bank network, we commissioned an evidence review to determine which interventions outside of the anti-hunger community are proven to increase financial well-being. The findings will inform our approaches and partnership development as we strive to support our neighbors in reaching food and financial security.
ELEVATING AWARENESS FOR THE HUNGER CRISIS

The Feeding America network was featured in more than 200,000 news stories—nearly four times more coverage than fiscal year 2019. Almost 80% of the news coverage was centered around COVID-19. Among the largest news outlets that covered the network’s immediate and ongoing response to the pandemic were CNN, NBC News, Reuters, ABC News, Associated Press, Forbes and PBS News. The largest and highest-reaching national stations and shows aired stories about Feeding America, including “Good Morning America,” “Face the Nation” and the “TODAY” show.

Feeding America’s social media profiles—Facebook, Twitter and Instagram—all experienced audience growth, with the latter having a 100.8% audience growth from the previous year. In total, our social media channels reached more than 1.2 million people. There were over 13 million visits to FeedingAmerica.org—a nearly 50% increase from the previous year and largely due to our brand recognition during the pandemic. Feeding America’s aided brand awareness increased 13% and we had a historic total donated media value—a nearly 42% increase from the prior year.

We also experienced a groundswell of celebrity support, leading to several special events to benefit member food banks as they worked to provide nutritious food to families when they needed us most. Special events included NBC’s “Parks and Recreation” telecast, FOX’s “iHeart Living Room Concert for America” hosted by Sir Elton John, and ABC’s “The Disney Family Singalong,” which featured a surprise appearance by Beyoncé. Throughout the year, the Feeding America Entertainment Council, which added Ally Brooke and Ryan Eggold, helped to advocate for our hunger-relief work. In December 2019, the council’s biggest volunteer event of the year, the Para Los Niños Felices Fiesta, was held in Los Angeles. Para Los Niños is a partner agency of the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank, a network member.

Feeding America’s social media channels reached more than 1.2 MILLION PEOPLE boosting awareness for the issue of hunger.

100% of U.S. counties are home to people facing hunger according to Feeding America’s Map the Meal Gap 2020.

Map the Meal Gap 2020 marked the 10-year anniversary of our annual study and featured an updated model that improved the way we estimate local-level food insecurity. According to the study, food insecurity levels for most communities in the U.S. had fallen to levels not seen since before the Great Recession. However, those advances will likely be erased due to COVID-19, as we know the number of people facing food insecurity has significantly increased, leaving more people facing access and cost barriers to putting food on the table. Before the pandemic, more than 35 million Americans, including over 10 million children, faced food insecurity. As the pandemic began, we used the Map the Meal Gap model to project how food insecurity may increase in response to rises in poverty and unemployment due to the economic crisis.

The State of Senior Hunger in America in 2018, our annual study about food insecurity specific to seniors, notably demonstrated that, while the overall food insecurity rate did finally revert to pre-recession levels in 2018, the food insecurity rate for seniors did not and has remained relatively flat since 2016.

We also continued to advance the Service Insights Initiative, supporting food banks in collecting data from the people we serve to enhance our understanding of their circumstances and improve outreach and service delivery. During the past fiscal year, food bank participation increased from 80 food banks to more than 100 across the network.

Additional research reports released in fiscal year 2020 include The Healthcare Costs of Food Insecurity and Addressing Food Insecurity Among College Students.
We spent the first nine months of fiscal year 2020 supporting the expansion of healthcare partnerships and “nudges”—small environmental cues that can impact healthy food choices—across the food bank network. More than 50% of the network is engaged in healthcare partnerships—of which, many have been valuable during the COVID-19 response. Much of this was possible due to the launch of Feeding America’s Healthcare Partnership Community of Practice, and the refinement of the Nourish Toolbox, which includes implementation toolkits for healthcare-food bank partnerships, diabetes prevention initiatives and healthy pantry environments.

We launched Food for Today—Food for Tomorrow, a national healthcare pilot that seeks to equip network food banks and health insurance plans with best practice guidelines for meeting the needs of individuals experiencing food insecurity. Meanwhile, advancements were made in Food is Medicine, a study looking at how the healthcare setting helps address food insecurity and builds food bank and clinic partnerships, with the goal of improving patient health outcomes.

In the midst of the nation’s response to COVID-19, our Health and Nutrition team launched updated HIPAA guidance for food banks working with healthcare partners and created the Feeding America Public Health Committee, focused on a systems approach to addressing the health and safety of food banks and their staff, and health inequities facing people experiencing food insecurity.

MORE THAN 50% OF NETWORK FOOD BANKS are engaged in healthcare partnerships to improve nutrition and health in their communities.
Your support helped us design and test innovative approaches to transform the way food is sourced, shared and accessed to better serve people in need.

In June 2020, we expanded our MealConnect platform, making it the first food-rescue technology available nationwide for all food businesses. With the MealConnect enhancement, it is now easier to facilitate safe and quick donations from across the food supply chain to network members. In fiscal year 2020, MealConnect was used by 115 food banks to process 1 million donations—resulting in more than 500 million pounds of donated food for neighbors in need. Work is underway to create a robust platform that sources across all food streams and digitally connects food banks and agencies nationwide. Since its inception in 2014, MealConnect has helped us rescue more than 2 billion pounds of food.

In collaboration with four food banks, we co-developed and began scaling Feeding America’s first direct-to-neighbor digital platform: OrderAhead. This click-and-collect technology enables people to use their phone to order groceries from a food bank and pick them up at a convenient location. In addition to groceries, the application has the potential to offer SNAP assistance, nutrition education, and/or advocacy/research opportunities.

Project Foresight explores how trends in the food system, environment, economy and technology might influence how we meet the needs of our neighbors facing food insecurity in the coming years. By looking into the future, we can imagine new roles to support greater community food security, enable leaders to anticipate changes in the American landscape and uncover opportunities to work differently and with greater impact.

With network members and external partners, we tested a collaborative sourcing prototype that uses machine-learning algorithms that enable food banks to more effectively reallocate large-scale donations of perishable food such as fresh produce. We also co-developed tools to help improve particularly challenging food rescue situations such as identifying a nearby recipient for a grocery store donation. By marrying the algorithms with food sourcing and logistics processes, we hope to accelerate the evolution of supply chain systems.
In partnership with exceptional donors like you, Feeding America awarded* more than $240 million in a record number of grants to every network member food bank. This grant funding included over $146 million from our COVID-19 Response Fund through June 30, 2020.

The ALL IN Challenge was a digital fundraising campaign, raising tens of millions of dollars to feed people in need. The ALL IN Challenge was created and built by Fanatics Founder and Executive Chairman Michael Rubin, along with Alan Tisch and Gary Vaynerchuk, with support from the entire Fanatics team—all on behalf of the All In Challenge Foundation. Rubin tapped into his network of friends in sports and entertainment to raise money for hunger relief. Through the ALL IN Challenge, music and entertainment figures donated some of their most prized possessions and were challenged to create unique experiences for online auction and as giveaways. Experiences such as joining NFL quarterback Tom Brady for a football game, playing basketball with Earvin “Magic” Johnson, participating in the “Friends” TV reunion and performing with Jennifer Lopez were auctioned off with 100% of funds donated to hunger relief.
Feeding America Leadership Partners are recognized for their generous contributions or commitments of $1 million or more, donations of 10 million pounds or more of food and grocery products, or combined gifts of $500,000 or more and 5 million pounds or more of food and grocery products. As part of their long-standing collaboration with Feeding America, Disney launched their Feed the Love campaign in March 2020 to provide continued access to nutritious food during the COVID-19 crisis. The company’s media networks ABC, Freeform, FX, Nat Geo, the ABC-owned television stations, as well as Hulu and A&E, drove awareness of hunger-relief efforts, educating the public at large about how to seek and provide help. The campaign included the Day of Hope programming, which helped tell stories of Feeding America’s local food banks’ efforts to address the growing hunger crisis during the pandemic; the Feed the Love PSA series, which brought celebrities to the mission; and The Disney Family Singalong specials, which shared messaging about Feeding America’s efforts while bringing together the whole family to find comfort and joy during a difficult time.

How We Feel is a nonprofit started by Pinterest CEO Ben Silbermann and doctors and scientists from MIT, Harvard, Stanford and other academic institutions. How We Feel is focused on stopping the spread of COVID-19 by crowdsourcing self-reported symptoms. It takes just 30 seconds a day to complete a health check-in, but it has the potential to save lives. The first time an individual completes a check-in, How We Feel donates the financial equivalent of one meal to Feeding America—with a pledge of up to 10 million meals.

HungerMitao is a volunteer-driven, grassroots movement focused on raising awareness about hunger in America, improving community engagement, as well as channeling resources and contributions of the Indian American community toward fighting hunger through the Feeding America food bank network. Launched in 2017 in North Texas, the movement has enabled more than 30 million meals through Feeding America and food banks in North Texas, Houston, New York City, Atlanta, and Seattle. Raj and Aradhana (Anna) Asava, volunteer leaders and co-founders of HungerMitao, recently pledged $1 million to Feeding America and network member food banks as a demonstration of their commitment to help end hunger in America. Raj and Anna also introduced Feeding America to Indiaspora at the beginning of the COVID-19 crisis. Indiaspora, through its ChaloGive for COVID-19 campaign, mobilized the Indian diaspora in the U.S. to direct their philanthropy toward hunger relief in the United States and India.

THANK YOU TO GENERAL MILLS

As one of Feeding America’s long-standing partners, General Mills leveraged their unique assets to help food banks address the complex challenges presented by COVID-19. In response to the increased demand food banks were facing, General Mills produced and provided $5 million of food for Feeding America member food banks. This innovative initiative called “Manufacture to Donate” provided much-needed, ready-to-eat foods like whole grain cereals, granola bars and individually wrapped waffles to the Feeding America network at a time when food donations were declining.

GENERAL MILLS’ INVESTMENT PROVIDED FOOD BANKS VITAL SUPPORT TO RESPOND TO INCREASED DEMAND.
The following individuals, companies and organizations are recognized for their generous in-kind contributions.

As advocates committed to effecting social change, partners Earth Alliance, Emerson Collective, Apple, and the Ford Foundation launched America’s Food Fund at the start of the COVID-19 pandemic, with the goal of ensuring that all people have reliable access to food. Through their leadership and quick activation, the fund was able to shine a spotlight on the issue of hunger and the critical work that hunger-relief organizations, including Feeding America and network food banks, were doing to respond to the crisis. The fund was seeded by the partners and went on to raise almost $38 million and counting. From the start of the pandemic, these partners graciously chose to use their strong platform to highlight the issues our network was facing on the frontlines and support our collective response to serve the vast number of people in need of food through the pandemic.

THANK YOU TO AMERICA’S FOOD FUND

BECAUSE OF AMERICA’S FOOD FUND, THE NETWORK CAN EQUITABLY PROVIDE RELIABLE ACCESS TO FOOD.
The van Hengel Society is named in honor of John van Hengel—founder of the modern food bank movement—and honors individuals who make legacy gifts, including bequests and charitable gift annuities, in support of Feeding America.
